legislature imposing a tax of $50 per quarter on commercial travelers or from Flagstaff stating that he died from pneumonia. It was set right the next day and the true story of his sad death told. But too late; the first message had been flashed over the continent and even in his former home, Chicago, all the papers published accounts of his death and attributed it to pneumonia.

SCHOOL OF THE NATIVITY.

Work Commenced on New Building— History of Loretto Society.

Work was inaugurated this week for the construction of the new home of the School of the Nativity, under the charge of the Sisters of Loretto. The building will be located just north of the site of the present school and when finished will be an ornament to the city and house one of the substantial educational institutions of Northern Arizona.

The plans furnished by A. W. Jurden, the architect and contractor, show a two-story brick with basement of stone, 34x38 feet, containing nine rooms, with necessary pantrys, bathrooms and lavatories; a hot-air furnace will furnish heat for the building and a complete system of electric lights will be installed—in fact, all the modern improvements in the building line will be utilized for the health and comfort of the inmates. William Friedlien has secured the contract for the plumbing.

The general style of the building is Colonial, though in places it verges on the modern school.

The contract calls for the completion of the building by January 1, 1900. Mr. Jurden has the work in hand and his well-known energy in the line of construction is guarantee that the School of the Nativity can open in their new home after the winter holidays.

Rev. F. Dilly has long had this school in contemplation, and it is to his untiring efforts that this palatial structure is due.

A short history of the Order of Loretto, a purely American educational institution, will not be amiss at the present time, and the following facts are gleaned from "The Life of Rev. Charles Nerinckx":

The founder of the Order, Charles Nerinckx, was born October 2, 1761, at Herffelingen, Belgium, and was ordained a priest toward the end of 1785. He early showed his inclination to aid in the education of his parishoners, a prominent characteristic of his family, his brother John being the founder of Catholic education in England.

Owing to the persecution to which he was subjected during the French revolution, Father Nerinckx emigrated to America in 1804, and the following year was assigned to the Kentucky mission. In 1807 he started a school for the Catholic education of the children under his charge, and on the inauguration of the Order of the Sisters of Loretto in 1812 they took entire charge of the same.

From a membership of five in that year the Loretto Society has gradually forged ahead until now its membership is over 800 and controls 40 schools in Kentucky, Missouri and other western states and territories, besides having charge of many parochial schools in the middle west. Four new schools have been organized the present year.

The School of the Nativity, under the charge of the Sisters only a month, has forty pupils enrolled, of whom fifteen are taking instruction in music. The Superior of the school, Sister

New School Building.

The school under the charge of the Sisters of Loretto has outgrown its present capacity, and a new and commodious building is to be erected.

The new building will be 90x95 feet, of brick, two stories, and bids are now being asked for. The cost will probably be in the neighborhood of $20,000.

The building has been in contemplation by Father Vabre for the past two years, and his hope is about to be realized. The site chosen is near the present school, and is one of the best in town. The school will be a boarding school, and will have facilities for students from other portions of the territory.

driving a car registered to B. Rowe, 45, of Taos. ...
... body, clad only in pajama tops, was found by a Navajo boy behind a clump of trees off of U.S. Highway 66. He had been beaten about the head and hit in the face with a .25-caliber bullet.

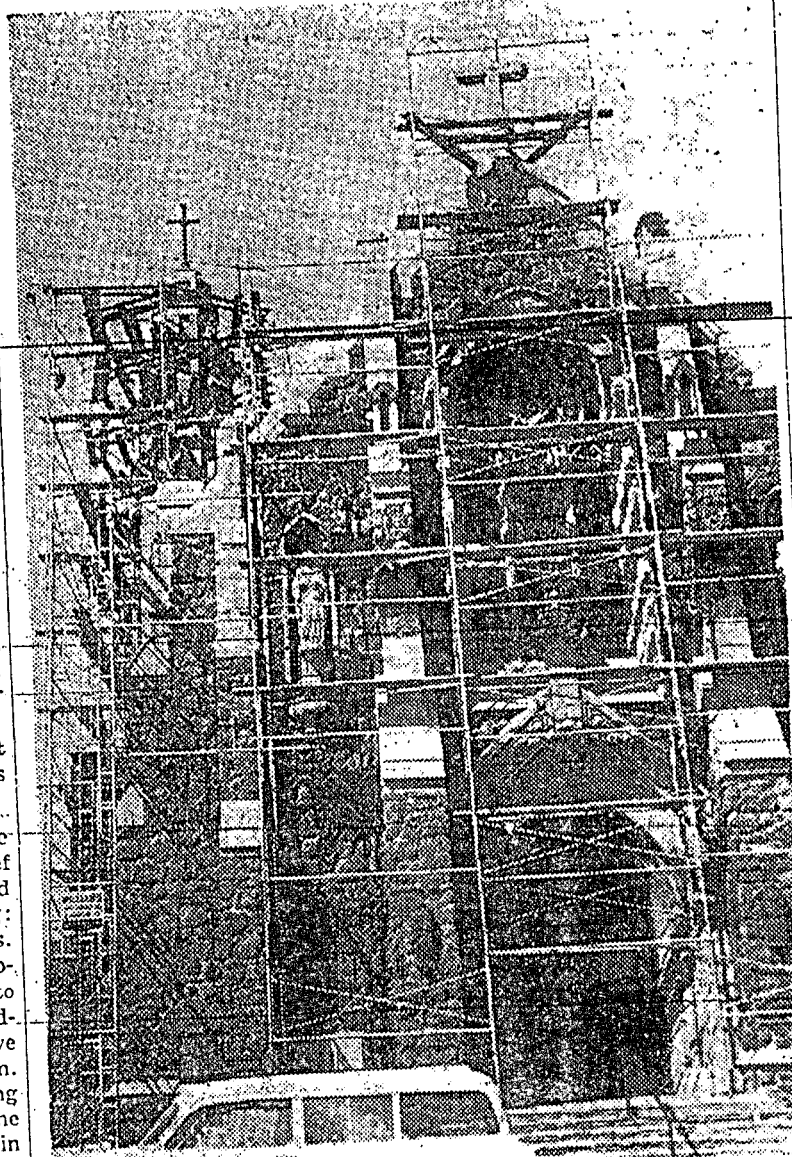

Identity of the victim was not established until Romney told his story to Kingman police.

Sheriff Frank Porter of Mohave county and Kingman Police Chief Homer Imus, said they had pieced together this story of the slaying: Romney knew the artist in Taos. Early Monday morning, he approached Rowe seeking money to go to California to visit his grandparents and his girl friend. Rowe told he had no money to give him. "He told us they were sitting in a semi-dark room and that he talked up to Rowe and shot him in the face with a .25 caliber automatic," Porter said. "He then wrapped the body in a mattress and blankets and a bedspread and put it in Rowe's station wagon and left for the coast."

As he approached the Arizona checking station at Sanders, he decided he better get rid of the body. He turned off a side road and dumped it behind some trees, the sheriff said.

He threw the gun away west of Flagstaff and abandoned the car in Kingman.

City police investigated the car, saw the bloodstains and traced the occupant to the bus station where Romney was arrested.

ART STONE RESTORED—The A. R. Williams Water-Proofing and Painting Company of Los Angeles is restoring the art stone at the Church of the Nativity. The project, begun last Monday, will take 60 days. This will assure the water proofing of the church and restore the pre-cast stone that has been deteriorating the past 20 years. The Williams company is the only company west of the Mississippi river that is qualified to do the work. (SUNfoto).

Opening Data Given; School Plant Ready

Staff, Faculty
Lists Announced

The new Flagstaff High School classroom buildings will be ready for use by the time school begins next Monday, Aug. 29, Sturgeon Cromer, superintendent of schools, said today, in announcing school opening details.

A complete list of faculty members for all schools was also announced.

Cromer said that the new high school auditorium building will not be completed until around Oct. 1, but that other portions of the new high school plant are in readiness.

As soon as the entire plant is complete, the board of education plans a dedication ceremony and open house for the public, Cromer said.

Another building project, involving addition of six classrooms to Mount Elden school, is also well underway, but will not be in readiness for several weeks, he said.

Work of the school year will get underway Thursday morning at 8 when a breakfast session is held at Marshall school for all teachers. Following the breakfast, a general teachers meeting will be held at the new high school library.

Activity Church Named State Historical Place

Site of the original of the Blessed Virgin Roman Catholic church in Flagstaff will be listed on the State Inventory of Historic Places as part of a bicentennial project. The project, which includes the listing of churches as historical sites, marking the 200th anniversary of Christianity in Arizona, is being coordinated by the executive director, H. Gliss, announced. This is the first one in the diocese in the state to be officially designated as a bicentennial narrative activity. Three tablets would mark the arrival of the Franciscan missionaries, the Jesuit missionaries and the diocesan priests. Other churches to be marked include Holy Family Church, Jerome; site of the first Catholic Church in Prescott; site of the first St. Mary's Church in Phoenix and Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church in Tempe. These sites are also proposed for the Historical Marker Program of the Arizona Historical Society.

Christ's Letter Sermon Subject

"The Letter To Ephesus" is the sermon title at the First Christian Church, 306 West Cedar, at the 10:45 a.m. worship hour. The minister, the Rev. Rodger N. Elliott, will begin the study of the seven letters of Christ to the seven churches mentioned in the opening chapters of the book of revelation.

Rather than to try to prove a theological argument, the minister will consider the letters in their historical context, and treat them as literal letters to literal churches, known to have existed at the time the letters were written, and apparently in need of divine concern. Background material on the various views of the book of Revelation will be made available, but will not be a part of the sermon content.

Williams 4-Square

WILLIAMS. — The Williams Foursquare Church is planning construction of a 40 by 80 foot annex to their church building on W. Sheridan Street. Rev. Alvin Cooper, pastor, said when the addition is completed the church hopes to operate a day care nursery as a service to the community.

He said the annex will house Sunday School class rooms, a kitchen and a main room. "We will have the facilities, and I think a day care nursery would be a real help to the town."

He said a request to use part of the building for a nursery has been presented to the city Planning and Zoning Commission and the commission will make a recommendation to the city council. The final decision is up to the council, Cooper said.

He added that the foundation for the annex is dug, but further work depends on the weather. The construction will be by volunteer labor, he said.

Bishop Scores Abortion D

By Edward A. McCarthy Roman Catholic Diocese of Phoenix

Wednesday should be considered a day of mourning. It is the second anniversary of the day when the U.S. Supreme Court issued its abortion decisions permitting destruction of unborn human life virtually on request. The Court's action has eroded respect for human life and established a climate of social permissiveness that has dramatically increased the number of abortions in the United States. It is estimated that there were perhaps 1.8 million abortions throughout the United States in 1974 and that figure will increase to 2.4 million by 1980. This means that there will be one abortion for

Perhaps the most tragic result of the Supreme Court's abortion decisions is the denial of protection for unborn human life during the earliest stage of its development on the grounds that such human life is somehow less meaningful than other human life. It was the "meaningful life" arguments that led to the wholesale extermination of human life in the gas chambers of World War II.

We affirm once again that human life is precious and beyond simple material valuation. It is a gift from God which must be protected and sustained at every point of its existence. Particularly during the nine months of pregnancy, the life of the child should be given special care and legal protec

Since the Supreme Court decisions, the need for a Constitutional amendment has become only more pressing. Attempts have been made to deny the Constitutional protection normally accorded to doctors, nurses and hospitals for conscientious refusal to participate in abortion procedures. There is increasing pressure from some members of the scientific community to permit the use of aborted fetuses in laboratory research, free of any restrictions whatsoever. Vandals Damage Interior
Of Historic Nativity Church

BY PAUL SWEITZER
Sun Staff Reporter
Vandals Monday caused extensive damage to the interior and furnishings of one of Flagstaff's best-known church buildings, destroying one of the church's three most historic statues.
Police Patrolman Robert Kimmell said the Rev. Celso Rodriguez, associate pastor of Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary Roman Catholic Church, reported the vandalism shortly before 7 p.m. Monday, when he went to close the church, at Beaver Street and Cherry Avenue, at the end of the day.
As nearly as police can determine, vandals entered the American gothic style building sometime after 2:30 p.m. Rodriguez had offered 7 a.m. Mass in the church, Kimmell said, and then was in and out of the church building several times until early afternoon. The priest apparently, was in the church rectory, next door, when the vandals entered.

Kimmell said there is no way, at this time, of estimating the dollar value of the malicious spree.
Kimmell's report indicated the vandals had toppled the church's main altar table, destroyed the hand-carved crucifix on the main altar, ripped up the interior of one of the church's two confessionals, and damaged a large statue of the Sacred Heart of Jesus on the church's western side altar.
The Sacred Heart statue was removed from its pedestal atop the side altar, Kimmell said, and placed on the altar's table. An arm of the statue was knocked off and found a few feet away, along with the head of a statue toppled from the main altar.

during the day, at least for a time.
Nativity was built in 1929-30, by the Right Rev. Edward Albouy, pastor for 28 years, and made use of the many furnishings and artifacts from the two previous Nativity churches, one located on the city's southern side and one located in the hall of the old Catholic academy building just across Beaver Street from the present site.
The main altar, which had parts ripped away by the vandals, also has been in all three churches, and was built in Flagstaff.

Forest Restrictions
Reimposed

Campfire and smoking restrictions go into effect at 8 a.m., Wednesday throughout the Coconino, Kaibab and Prescott National Forests.

Campfires are permitted in Forest Service constructed camp and picnic grounds only. A campfire does not include any cooking or heating device consuming kerosene, gasoline, or gas provided such device meets the Fire Underwriter's specifications for safety. Charcoal broilers and wood and coal stoves outside of dwelling are classed as campfires.

Smoking will be permitted at permanent places of habitation and in designated forest camp and picnic grounds. Smoking is also permitted while traveling in vehicles and in safe places designated and posted by the Forest Service.

Fire danger in these forests is high to extreme and restrictions are necessary to protect forests, rangelands, and watersheds from destruction by wildfire. All restrictions are indefinite.

Information concerning fire restrictions may be obtained at Ranger District Headquarters of the Coconino, Kaibab and Prescott National Forests.

The main altar statue, St. Aloysius Gonzaga, was one of the three oldest statues in the church, which was designated a symbolic historic site in 1976. The statue, one of St. Clare, and a larger statue of the Assumption of Mary all adorned the main altar. The St. Clare statue and the large statue of the virgin were not damaged.

The Gonzaga statue, depicting the Catholic patron of acolytes, was donated to the church, along with the St. Clare image, by the E. T. McGonigle, family, pioneers in the city's lumber industry. All three statues have adorned the three Flagstaff churches that have borne the name Nativity, since the parish was founded in 1888.

In addition to having the head knocked off, the Gonzaga statue also had the hands destroyed.

Other damage included breaking of altar candles and candlesticks and destruction of an artificial flower arrangement and its vase. A large banner near the main altar also was toppled.

The vandals also ripped two large Holy Water fonts, at the rear of the church, from the floor and toppled them.

Most of the damage was cleared from view by the time Rodriguez offered today's 7 a.m. Mass, and the building was open early today for use by worshippers.

Survey Reveals Sedona Interest in Recreation

BY PAUL SWEITZER
Sun County Reporter

Sedona-Oak Creek Canyon residents want to see their area become a natural recreational site, but are hesitant to have the U.S. Forest Service control the matter, and the congestion in the popular Slide Rock area of Oak Creek remains a major regional concern.

Those are two results of a Coconino County Planning and Building Safety Department survey ordered by County Supervisor J. Dennis Wells, Williams.

In a recent letter to constituents in the county's third supervisorial district, which encompasses Sedona-Oak Creek, Wells said he ordered the survey to "help provide direction to us as we plan for future development, and the preservation of the unique resources of this area."

One of Wells' major campaign concerns, as he sought the supervisor's job in 1976, was the future of the Sedona-Oak Creek area.

Planning Director Stanley A. Eisner, and his staff, used a mailed questionnaire, covering a variety of subjects, to carry out the survey.
"Residents of the planning area," Wells' letter said, "generally expressed the opinion that Oak Creek Canyon is a unique resource which should be preserved."
Most respondents felt that land within the canyon should gradually be acquired by the U.S. Forest Service and managed as a recreational, wildlife and scenic area.

"However, the Forest Service's handling of the Mayhew Lodge was often pointed to as an example of insensitivity and poor management that has lessened the faith of many people in the Forest Service's intent and ability to properly maintain the historic, as well as natural, resources of the canyon."

The Forest Service, now, is joined with both Coconino and Yavapai Counties to formulate a general land use plan for Sedona area. The effort WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal today rejected the Senate Finance Committee arguments that America's energy companies need more federal tax incentives to develop new reserves.

In drafting President Carter's national energy plan, Blumenthal told the committee, "We could have relied entirely on market incentives coupled with total deregulation of oil and natural gas prices."

But Blumenthal said relying on market incentives and deregulation would have created enormous distortion in the nation's economy and unjust windfall profits for the energy companies.

"The American people, with justification, would have rejected such an approach out of hand," Blumenthal told the committee.

Nativity Statues Repaired, Restored, Protected

BY PAUL SWEITZER
Sun Staff Reporter.

Flagstaff's Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary Roman Catholic Church, attacked in August by unknown vandals, has been restored and now is protected by an electronic alarm system.

The Rev. Vincent Nevulis, pastor of the historic site church, said all statues damaged in the vandals' attack, which took place Aug. 9, have been repaired and restored.

Other damaged furnishings also have been repaired, Nevulis said.

The pastor revealed the parish council authorized installation of an electronic alarm system that will sound, inside the church, outside the building, and in the parish rectory, if visitors trespass into certain unspecified areas of the American gothic structure.

In their attack, the vandals toppled and knocked the head off a statue of St.

Aloysius Gonzaga, which had been in every Nativity Church in the history of the city and also damaged and removed from its altar a statue of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

One theory about the attack is the vandals were fanatics who objected to large statue of Mary, as the Immaculate Conception, which dominates the church's high altar and attempted to cover that statue, with a nearby banner, and put the Sacred Heart statue on the main altar.

The St. Aloysius statue depicts the young Spanish saint dressed in priestly garb. He was a Jesuit novice — and the theory is the attackers also were anti-clerical.

Nevulis said the two statues were repaired largely by the Rev. James Allen, rector of Flagstaff's African Methodist Episcopal Church.

Nevulis, an artist in his own right, assisted in repairs.

Damaged woodwork on the church's historic high altar — built in Flagstaff — was repaired by Coconino County Superior Court Bailiff Al Driscoll and the church's Holy Water fonts, ripped from the floor at the rear of the building, were put back by Alvin Cole.

Both are members of Nativity parish.

The church, at the corner of Beaver Street and Cherry Avenue, was built in 1928-30, by the late Right Rev. Edward Albouy. It is considered one of the three finest examples of gothic design in the southwestern United States.

It is the third church in the city's history to bear the Nativity name.

Egypt Offers Peace Plan To Israel

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt offered Israel a new six-point peace plan today calling for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories and insisting that East Jerusalem return to Arab control. It also offered agreement on security before Israeli troops actually leave.

Unofficial Israeli reaction was cool.

Ahmed Maher, a spokesman for the Egyptian Foreign Ministry, said there would be no elaboration on the written text. "We have no comment on the proposals," Maher told reporters. "I think when you read them you will find them very clear."

The proposals were delivered to the Israeli Government earlier in the day by U.S. Ambassador Samuel W. Lewis in preparation for a meeting of Egyptian and Israeli foreign ministers in London in two weeks.

Many questions remained unanswered, but the plan apparently was an attempt to skirt Israeli objections on the withdrawal issue by offering to discuss security arrangements first and return of land later. Israel had said Egypt's demands for withdrawal were an unacceptable precondition.

The plan calls for "freely elected" representatives of the Palestinian people to administer the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip during a five-year transition period under the supervision of Jordan on the West Bank and Egypt in the Gaza Strip.

This appeared similar to Israel's earlier proposal to give the 1.1 million Palestinians limited self-rule under the guidance of Israel and Jordan. Both the Israeli and Egyptian plans call for abolition of the current military government in the occupied territories.

However, the Egyptian demand that Israel divide Jerusalem and abandon settlements in the occupied territory appeared to have little chance of Israeli acceptance.

A key difference in the Egyptian and Israeli plans is that Egypt has suggested security arrangements be negotiated.

Mrs. Adkins said the tornado ripped through the south part of the town without warning, badly damaging homes and trailers. She said a nursing home was also hit. Gary has a population of about 300.

Council To Consider Ordinance

An ordinance establishing the tax levy and a resolution allocating the sales tax for the 1978-79 fiscal year will be considered by the Flagstaff City Council at 7 tonight in City Hall council chambers.

The council is meeting Wednesday instead of Tuesday because of the Independence Day holiday.

The ordinance to be considered by the council would retain the tax level of $2 per $100 of assessed valuation. Of the $2, $1.85 is anticipated for general fund costs and 15 cents for the operation of the library.

The sales tax resolution provides $186,000 to the library fund.

In other business, four requests for payment totalling $121,364.30 will be considered. Payment has been requested by H.E. # Restoration Giving Church New, Fresher Appearance

BY LARRY CRITTENDEN
 Sun Staff Reporter

If you just glance as you go by, it looks like a simple, thorough cleaning. But it's more than a clean-up. It's a full-scale restoration.

Until six weeks ago, the Church of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary, 16 W. Cherry was quietly deteriorating, a victim of seeping, running water and freezing temperatures.

Moisture was getting into small cracks in the cast concrete and making those small cracks bigger. The gargoyles were no longer funneling water from the roof and some of it was getting to the interior of the church.

Now things are looking up and so are passersby. And when they look up, they see Charles Scott, the man responsible for the restoration process.

Scott moved to Phoenix from Chicago eight years ago. For many years in Chicago, he ran a business doing what he is doing now, restoring buildings. Then he moved to Phoenix and cut back on the amount of work he was doing.

"I figured I had risked enough," he said.

The challenge of the Church of the Nativity has put him on the scaffolding once again to do his work. It might be a lucky thing for the church. According to one of his friends, Scott is one of two persons in the country who can do this type of work.

"Who am I go argue with him," he said, "I don't know."

Scott said the job is a rewarding one. He spoke in detail about the stain-glass windows of the church and how they are irreplaceable.

"They are all German lead crystal," he said, adding that no one does work like that any more.

All of the interior woodwork is hand-carved, he said.

He has an obvious affinity for the church building, and has many other years in Chicago, he ran a business doing what he is doing now, restoring to complete. If all goes well, the project should be completed in another four to six weeks. That, said Scott, is a "shot in the dark estimate."

In the coming weeks, he will finish cleaning and sealing the exterior. The cleaning is done by sandblasting with a fine-silica crystal. The cracks are filled with a liquid epoxy and then the surface is sealed to keep out moisture.

Scott said he will cast new heads for some of the gargoyles. Some of the animal figures are missing theirs because running water has eroded the stone. He plans to make a mold of a head and cast them directly on the-necks.

In addition to the cleaning, sealing and casting, there is one other addition to the church. At the top of the steeple, a cross gleams as if plated with gold. It isn't gold. Instead it's a metallic film, which should last for many years; probably longer than gold.

It isn't costing the church a penny extra. It's a donation from Scott.

January SALT A Possibility

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev may meet in January to sign a strategic arms pact. If preliminary discussions between U.S. and Soviet diplomats next week proves successful, administration officials said today.

Currently, the ground is being laid for a conference between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, probably in Geneva, and expected to take place around Dec. 20.

That meeting would be held "hopefully to conclude" the drafting of a treaty suitable for signing by Carter and Brezhnev, officials said.

Progress on the SALT II treaty apparently was made when Vance held two meetings with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin last week before Vance flew to the Middle East on a peace mediation mission.

Time Magazine said today that a "tentative agreement" had been reached, but officials could not confirm that report.

Should the Vance-Gromyko meeting be successful, there is a possibility that Carter and Brezhnev would hold their long-awaited summit in January, meeting personally for the first time.

Vance and Gromyko had agreed at their last meeting that they would get together again "when there was something to meet about."

In recent days, Carter has said that only "minor" differences remain in the SALT talks. He told the Democratic midterm convention in Memphis Friday. "We hope to sign an agreement which will strengthen the security of the United States, will provide for accurate verification, and will substantially reduce the threat of nuclear war."

The president also told reporters last week he would like a summit with Brezhnev, expected to be held in the United States, to last over a period of four or five days and to cover a broad agenda of issues.

The White House has already begun a massive campaign to win ratification of the SALT Treaty when it is concluded and signed by the superpowers.

The remaining issues to be resolved include the number of warheads the United States could deploy on a new intercontinental missile, whether the United States could deploy conventionally armed cruise missiles, and restrictions on the Soviet Backfire Bomber.

Water Line Break Floods Church

It was cold enough to freeze water this weekend in a Catholic church at 16 West Cherry Street, in Flagstaff following a water line break Friday night that flooded the church's boiler room.

At services unexpectedly held Sunday morning in the nearby church school, Father Vincent Nevulis, pastor of Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary parish, told his congregation when he went into the church Friday afternoon to turn up the heat prior to an evening service, heard "a great rush of water," went down to the boiler room and found the furnaces snuffed out by four feet of muddy water.

Nevulis said a city water crew determined that the line leading into the Flagstaff landmark, which stands opposite the city library had broken inside the foundation, presumably from the cold.

Sunday he appealed to his parishioners for help in cleaning the muck out of the room and out of the church's 43-year-old gas-fired furnaces.

He said he would welcome the help of anyone in the community who knows about such furnaces.

The break which flooded the furnace room occurred on a day of record cold in the city.

Nevulis noted the irony in this incident, pointing out to his congregation that the flooding which may have damaged the expensive heating equipment has occurred just one month before the parish was to make its final mortgage payment on the parish property.

"It's interesting the way God has of keeping us humble," he commented wryly.

Efforts are expected to begin today to clean out the muck and to evaluate the effect of the flooding on the furnaces.

Wayne Thompson of Aar's Septic Service has volunteered to send in a crew to pump out the muck, and R.G. (Ted) Babbitt, president of Babbitt Brothers Trading Company, has indicated the firm has a furnace man who may be able to help. Both men were present for services when the problem was explained.

Search For Hunters Under Way

Two groups of hunters were missing east of Flagstaff today and a helicopter from the state Department of Public Safety was being used to search for them.

Coconino County sheriff's deputies said John Hughes Sr., 55, Phoenix, and his two sons, John Jr., 28, and Mike, 24, failed to return as scheduled Sunday night from a hunting trip near Winona.

Reported overdue in the same area were James Smith, 20, and Sam Dezell, 26, elk hunters from Flagstaff.

Defense Shot Down Sgt. York Gun

But the Pentagon has a closet full of expensive weapon systems that don't work, and in 20 years, it never killed one that had actually gone into production.

So why was the York killed? It's a story of disgruntled military officers frightened that they might have to take the York into battle, phony test results, leaked documents — and above all, a single representative who wouldn't let the matter rest.

Testing of a York prototype began in 1978; by 1982, word was out that although production had started, the York just didn't work. Several members of Congress became interested and began to ask questions performance.

Weinberger and Army officials steadfastly backed the York, but Army personnel — from high-ranking officers to enlisted men — began to supply Smith and his staff with test reports and other data that showed the York to be a technical disaster.

Under pressure from Congress, the Pentagon had agreed to halt further acquisition of the York until the gun passed series of tests under battlefield conditions.

The tests were conducted early this summer, and the Pentagon circulated videotapes of six target drones being destroyed by the York.

and praised the Sgt. York.

That was the last straw. He won't admit it, but Smith reportedly called Weinberger that day and said he would go public with everything he knew unless something was done — and done quickly. He also said that he would seek Weinberger's impeachment if he continued to defend the Sgt. York.

Weinberger held a press conference the next morning, called the York "not operationally suitable," and announced that it was being scrapped.

ally help control the regular growth of cells. But when the genes become part of viruses, they can trigger the uncontrolled cell growth that typifies cancer tumors.

The research helped scientists understand how cancer begins, and it widened our insight into the complicated signal systems which govern the normal growth of cells," the assembly said.

The first oncogenic virus was discovered in 1916, but its operation was not fully understood until nearly 50 years later.

"The great importance of the discovery is that we have a completely different view on how cancer can originate, and through that we hope to be able to use this practically later on," said Peter Reichard, chairman of the Nobel Assembly.

Varmus called the research by him and Bishop a "cornerstone in understanding the genetic mosaic of cancer."

"The basic idea that we helped establish is that cancer has its origins in genes that normally do us some good. But after they become abnormal through mutation, they cause a role in cancer."

He and Bishop will share a $469,000 cash prize.

It was the third time the Nobel Prize has been awarded for research in connection with this field of research. Peyton Rous was first given the prize after his 1916 discovery of the tumor-inducing virus known as the Rous sarcoma mittes said they were satisfied with how McCain handled the matter.

The story said that during several interviews with The Republic, McCain denied having been influenced by his family's business dealings but acknowledged that failure to reimburse Keating for the flights was "a terribly serious oversight."

He added that he was aware of his wife's and father-in-law's investment with Keating when he and the other senators attended two April 1987 meetings to grill federal regulators about their overseeing of Lincoln Savings and Loan Association, which American Continental owns.

McCain conceded that the meetings appeared to be "improper" but denied any conflict of interest. He also complained that disclosure of the business ties would be unfair, the paper said.

"After the feeding frenzy that you all have been on, this will be incredibly damaging," the story quoted McCain. "If I had financial ties with him, I would think that you have a big story, but I don't."

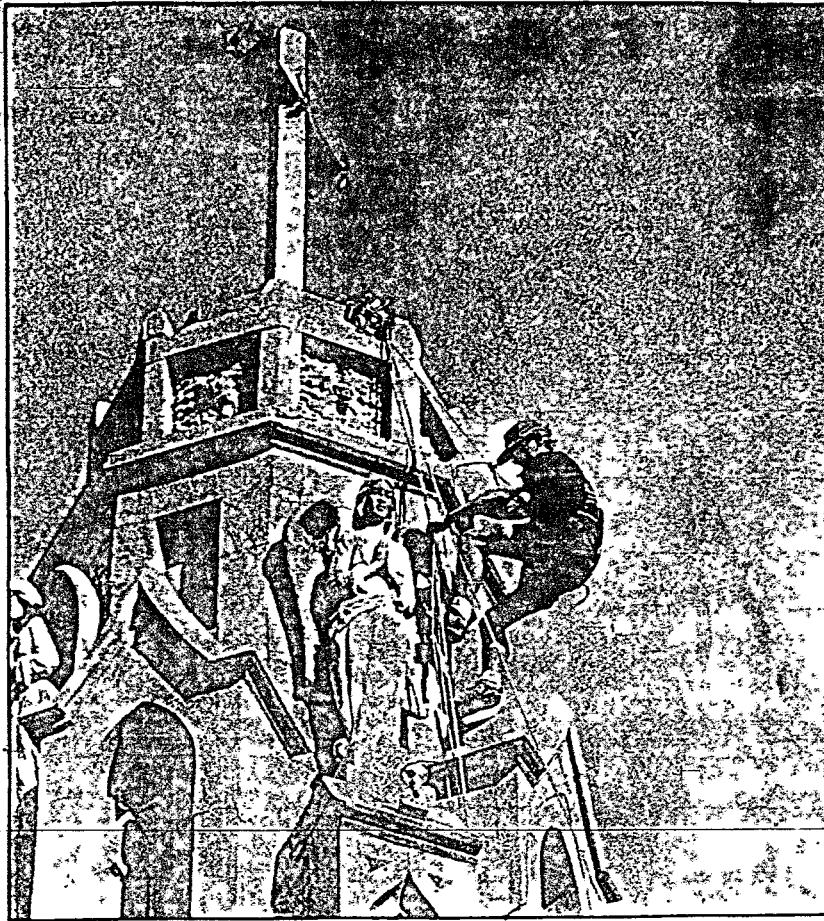

The paper said McCain said the questions raised about his conduct in the meetings make this the hardest period of his life, worse than the nearly six years he spent as a prisoner of war in North Vietnam.

"Even the Vietnamese didn't question my ethics," McCain said.

"I don't seek sympathy, but it's been a terrible experience. And, again, it's something I could have avoided by not going to that (second) meeting. No one came and put a gun to my head and marched me into that room. I went of my own free will."

Keating also made heavy contributions to the four other senators at the second 1987 meeting: Democrats Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, Alan Cranston of California, John Glenn of Ohio and Donald Riegle of Michigan.

Like McCain, they contend they were helping a constituent.

GOP needs minorities: Atwater

BALTIMORE (AP) — Republican Party chairman Lee Atwater said Saturday that Republicans will have to put out the welcome mat for minorities if the GOP is to become the majority party by the year 2000.

Addressing about 1,000 predominantly white women attending the biennial convention of the National Federation of Republican Women here, Atwater urged the group to use its proven grassroots organizational ability to recruit black, Hispanic, Jewish and Asian voters.

He also called upon the group's members to run for office at every level and to recruit other women to do the same.

"There's no question in my mind that this gender gap people talk about will disappear for good if we start electing women to office," Atwater said.

But, Atwater said the GOP must change its image with minorities.

"My opinion is that by the year 2000 we will truly be the majority party in this country. ... But I'll tell you something, we're not going to be the majority party unless we seriously reach out and expand our base," said President Bush's 1988 presidential campaign manager.

Noting Bush received a 76 percent general approval in the most recent Washington Post poll, with a constant approval rating of 60 percent among blacks, Atwater said, "We got the right man in office... We are right on the issues."

Atwater said as party chairman, his policy is that 50 percent of his calls and 50 percent of his media contacts are related to minority outreach.
